

[Name] David Nichols United States, 1963
[Current Positions] - Lecturer at Hosei Business School of Innovation Management, Global MBA program- Assistant Professor at graduate and undergraduate programs
[Message for students] Effective strategic organizational management must consider both management and governance as well as ethics in order for any organization to make sustainable long-term growth possible. How an organization governs its business activities is dependent on factors including the industry, legal jurisdiction, regulatory regime and society in which it is operating This course will focus on developing tools that future managers can use to manage and govern at all levels of the company and stages of their career. Through case studies students will understand the origins and fundamental reasons for established governance and strong ethics, and employees, managers and other stakeholders' roles in developing and maintaining robust corporate governance in an ethical environment.
[Specialized field] International Business Management
[Class Name] Strategic Organizational Management (Corporate Governance and Ethics)
[Background] David's 30 + year career working for both Japanese and foreign companies in Japan and the United States in C-suite roles including President, Chief Administrative Officer and Chief Operating Officer have been focused on operating within corporate governance standards and procedures that provide effective risk management as while achieving business objectives. He also played a key role in establishing legal entity governance standards as the Asia Pacific representative to a GSIFI custody bank's Legal Entity Governance Standards Committee. He has also been active in establishing, monitoring and evaluating international NGO's governance for over 10 years. David earned his BA from the Jackson School of International Studies at the University of Washington in 1985 and his MBA from the Anderson Graduate School of Management at UCLA in 1992. While at UCLA David served as a graduate teaching assistant.

[Main research achievement/Social activity]

David's civic activities have included:

- President and Treasurer of the Boy Scouts of America's Far East Council
- Lieutenant and firefighter in the Scarsdale Fire Company #1
- Certified Emergency Medical Technician

[Affiliated academic society • association]

- American Chamber of Commerce in Japan, Investment Management Committee, Vice Chairman
- President Emeritus, Boy Scouts of America's Far East Council